Introduction

The 2019 - 2024 Aging Plan for Davie County is intended to provide a framework for the future of aging in Davie County. This represents a collaborative effort of individual citizens, representatives from the business and nonprofit communities, and service providers from both the public and private sectors.

Davie County, like the state and country, is aging. Already, the number of people in Davie County under age 18 is less than the number of people age 60 years and older. Declines in birth rates over the past 50 years mean that many older adults do not have children or other family members to help with their care as they age. Additionally, it means that there will be fewer working-age people in the general workforce (and the healthcare workforce) available to fill the jobs of caregiving to support older adults. The fact that more than a fourth of Davie’s age 65+ people live alone and more than a fifth are at 199% of the poverty level, raises heightened concerns about their well-being over the years.

With this in mind, Davie County Senior Services took the lead on a nine month process in creating an Aging Plan for the next five years. In order to gather information, personal interviews were conducted with fourteen key stakeholders around the county. Over a period of one and half months, surveys were conducted and six focus groups, called Community Conversations, were held around the county to gather public input.

Once the information was gathered, a steering committee made up of representatives from the Senior Services Advisory Council and the Davie County Aging Services Planning Committee met to assess, streamline and prioritize the areas of focus. Five areas were chosen: Communication Strategy, Health for the Aging Population, Transportation, Housing, and Financial Well-being.

The steering committee secured community volunteers to serve in workgroups for each area of focus. Workgroup members met over a three month period to develop goals, objectives and strategies for each area.
Introduction

While the groups each worked on their particular area of focus, many themes emerged that transcended various work groups. Once the workgroup meetings were complete, a smaller team convened over the next month to gather all information into one master plan. For simplicity of the final plan, those multi-faceted themes were streamlined into one specific area of focus, rather than repeating under several areas.

The Davie County Aging Plan is meant to be a living document. Although the plan is for five years, it will not go untouched until then. Workgroups are expected to meet on a quarterly basis during the first year, or as needed, in order to discuss the goals, evaluate progress in meeting these goals and revise whenever necessary. In years two through five, workgroups will meet on a semi-annual basis to continue to monitor progress, refine goals and update the plan.

The success of this plan depends on continued collaboration and community involvement over the next five years. The participation of a variety of community members and organizations is critical for the goals and objectives to be met. By working together, Davie County can build capacity to support our aging population and ultimately improve the quality of life for all residents.

For questions about the Aging Plan or to become involved in fulfilling the goals and objectives outlined, please contact Davie County Senior Services at 336-753-6230.
